

A tech-savvy Government – not a Utopian dream anymore

Yes, you read the headline right. E-governance is not just a fancy term but a technology-focused government initiative that is gaining in stature. By leveraging technology, governments are trying to respond to citizens' queries more effectively while improving business processes and achieving transparency and accelerated performance. Also, governments understand that technology provides better security to classified documents and is working on digitizing every single process in order to better serve the citizens.

It is here that SolveIT, Inc. can help Government – both State and Local – in efficiently providing document management solutions and making the transition to a performance-oriented system that would portray a proactive image of the Government in the minds of the people. We offer Microsoft Office SharePoint Services (MOSS) to governments to better manage their content and document critical data that would drastically cut lead times in retrieving them when needed while focusing on core governance to reach out to the people.

Our solutions offer:

- An efficient document management system
- Prevent security breach of classified documents and maintain data integrity
- Retrieve documents at will and cut down lead times in locating and retrieving files
- A well-archived document library that enables better response to public issues
- Help build a proactive image of Government
